

SAY NO TO SWIMMING WITH CAPTIVE DOLPHINS

They LOSE Their FREEDOM
They LOSE Their FAMILY
They LOSE Their HEALTH
They LOSE Their MINDS

Many captive dolphins were originally caught from the wild. Some are caught during 'drive hunts' where the rest of the pod is barbarically killed and young individuals are plucked from a sea of blood. For every captive dolphin you see many more have died during capture, transit, and as a result of poor living conditions. It is a scientific fact that we simply cannot keep cetaceans holistically happy and healthy in captivity. Dolphinariums are prevalent in countries where animal welfare standards are either not present or not enforced. Therefore, it is common for cetaceans to be kept for prolonged periods of time in tiny holding tanks, to go blind as a result of the chlorine in their pools or to be left lying on the floor of an empty tank while staff clean. The cost to them is high.

Ending the demand is the way to end the suffering. Take this experience off your bucket list today!

DOWNLOAD

Download a guide to responsible tourism at www.projectorangutan.com/responsible-tourism

